If when you think of training, words like "boring" and "tedious discussion groups" come to mind, then we do not know all we need to know about training. Training can be challenging. We need to apply some initiative to the needs we have and think of a good way to get it through to the delegates.

A new program of training has been devised for the 1975 Conclave. It offers five "divisions" of training, each concentrating on a specific area and each containing three sessions. Each delegate should choose only one division as his area of training concentration and attend all three sessions listed for that division. Your Lodge Chief should play a major role in helping you to determine what division is most helpful for you.

Divisions & Sessions:
